Being drug free is simply good business!

Conference attendees can network and learn directly from their clients: public and private owners

In addition to cutting-edge presentations by national experts, the Ohio Construction Conference gives attendees a chance to learn from the most valuable resource of all: their clients.

More than 20 owners – both public and private buyers of design and construction services in Central Ohio – will lead roundtable sessions at the day-long event, set for Feb. 23 at COSI Columbus. Even more will attend as participants.

“The owner-led roundtables are back by popular demand,” said Cathy Blackford, executive director of the Builders Exchange and a Conference planner. She said the event concludes with a two-hour session, at which guests discuss pre-assigned topics at tables of 10.

“There is no stronger message than hearing directly from our customers,” she added, noting that the roundtables have assigned seats to mix up participant types.

“The owners will lead the discussion, but each table mix will include architects, engineers, general contractors, subcontractors and others. And every person’s perspective adds value to these conversations.”

Blackford noted that owners who participated last year enjoyed the experience, which creates a conversation table for an hour, after which all participants move to a second group for a second conversation.

“There is much business-card-swapping, many old friends greeting one another, lots of laughter... along with plenty of serious conversation,” connecting owners, designers, contractors & suppliers

“Each successful project team has these key ingredients: technical skills, a collaborative spirit, a strong sense of humility, great communication skills, and a combined focus to achieve results.”

— Larry Spysinski
Vice President, Planning & Engineering
Columbus Regional Airport Authority

she said. “Everyone I talked to said this was eye-opening and fun.”

Joining the discussion leaders this year is Larry Spysinski, vice president of planning and engineering for the Columbus Regional Airport Authority. As an owner, he wanted to be part of the Ohio Construction Conference because of the relationship-building it fosters.

“Each successful project team has these key ingredients: technical skills, a collaborative spirit, a strong sense of humility, great communication skills, and a combined focus to achieve results,” he said.

Blackford said the roundtables are a chance for owners to discuss their “priorities and passions” when building a successful project. “I suggest companies send several people, to gain as many ideas as they can.”

To register for the Conference, visit the BX website, bx.org or contact Sanda Elkins (ext. 216) at the Builders Exchange.

Scholarship application deadline approaching

If you know someone pursuing a construction-related degree—a relative, employee, friend—here’s your chance to be a hero!

Encourage them to apply (or re-apply!) for a Builders Exchange scholarship. The BX is currently accepting applications for the 2010-2011 school year.

Criteria for scholarship awards include academic achievement, extracurricular activities, financial need and potential impact on the central Ohio construction community. Here’s where you get to be the hero: a recommendation from a BX member is welcome and will be considered as part of the evaluation process.

In 2009, the BX Scholarship Program awarded $49,250 to 47 area students pursuing studies in a variety of fields that are part of the broad community of commercial construction, including:

- Architecture
- Construction Management
- Engineering
- Interior Design
- Landscape Design/Build

High school seniors and students currently enrolled in a two or four-year college program are eligible if they are pursuing a construction-related degree. Prior recipients of BX scholarships are encouraged to re-apply for the coming school year.

Completed applications must be received by noon on Friday, Feb. 26 in order to be considered.

For more information about the Scholarship Program, contact Deb Murphy (ext. 233) at the Exchange.

NEW BWC REQUIREMENT

Two hours of additional safety training needed

Ohio Bureau of Workers' Compensation's (BWC) new rule mandates that any employer currently participating in a group rating program that has experienced a workers' compensation claim between January 1, 2007 and December 31, 2008 must complete a required two hours of additional safety training before June 30, 2010.

- BWC's requirement applies to all approved claims an employer has had within the timeframe stated above, regardless of size or severity.
- If an employer has experienced more than one claim within this period, they are still only obligated to attend two hours of safety training.
- The regular training you perform to comply with OSHA, DOT or Drug-Free regulations will not count toward this requirement.
- Any company representative can fulfill the two-hour training obligation.

In order to assist you in fulfilling this requirement, the BX is holding two courses. The first on Thursday, March 4, from 1 to 3 p.m., and the second on Friday, March 12, 8:30 to 10:30 a.m., at the Exchange. Topics will include:

- Accident Investigation: Developing a comprehensive accident plan and having the proper tools and documents readily available will help you capture the essential information and protect your business.

- Keys to Effective Safety Program Management: This presentation focuses on BWC's 10-Step Business Plan for Safety, which is a primary component of many BWC programs. Group-rating participants are strongly encouraged to implement these components to help prevent injuries and control workers' compensation costs.
- OSHA Update: You will learn the top citations being issued for general industry and construction over the past year so you can ensure your business is in compliance. We will also look at trends in workplace injury rates and the new focus of the agency under the Obama administration, including the new rules that are under development and the industries being targeted.

The course is $35 for participants in the BX Workers' Comp Group, $45 for other BX members and $65 for nonmembers.

To reserve a seat, contact Stacey Kruse (ext. 226). For more information, contact Michelle Kadisevskis (ext. 219) at the Exchange.
